

HIGHLIGHT

Sponsored content

DOXA SUB 200 THE LEGEND GETS SOME COLOUR

The legendary SUB 200 now comes with a choice of six dial colours and matching rubber strap. The original “beads of rice” stainless steel bracelet remains available as well.

Orange for Professional, yellow for Divingstar, navy blue for Caribbean, turquoise for Aquamarine, silver for Searambler and black for Sharkhunter: DOXA introduces a comprehensive range of SUB 200 diving watches with a choice of six vibrant dial colours and, a first for DOXA, a tone-on-tone FKM rubber strap that matches the dial.

Orange for Professional, yellow for Divingstar, navy blue for Caribbean, turquoise for Aquamarine, silver for Searambler and black for Sharkhunter: which dial colour will it be?

Built from the highest-quality 316L stainless steel, the 42 mm SUB 200 initially came with a “beads of rice” bracelet, also in highest-quality 316L stainless steel, with folding clasp and exclusive “DOXA Fish” logo. This heritage bracelet naturally remains available as well.

What's more, each reference in the range is now available in regular production. Distinctive features of this series continue to be the baton-type hands, applied hour markers and bezel indications with Super-LumiNova®, accentuating the watch's genuine vintage character. Topped with a sapphire crystal that has the characteristic curve of the plexiglas used in the early days, and rated for a depth of 200 metres, the SUB 200 sports a stainless steel unidirectional rotating bezel with sapphire insert and is powered by a Swiss mechanical self-winding calibre.

www.doxawatches.com

