

FREDERIQUE CONSTANT HIGHLIFE PERPETUAL CALENDAR MANUFACTURE A NEW MILESTONE IN THIS AMBITIOUS REVIVAL

“Highlife” is the revival of an historic collection that shaped the face of luxurious and affordable contemporary Swiss Made watchmaking. It is now available as a perpetual calendar with a manufacture movement and an integrated and interchangeable bracelet.

A perpetual calendar denotes a level of mastery to which few brands have access. It’s an illustration of technical skills patiently acquired over the course of more than 30 years’ watchmaking experience. And “Manufacture” is a declaration, about belonging to an exclusive club of watchmakers capable of designing, producing, assembling and testing their own timepieces.

Available in three variations, the Highlife Perpetual Calendar Manufacture offers either a plain blue dial housed in a steel case, a two-tone styling combining steel and rose gold plating on both the case and bracelet, or a subtle combination of a white dial complemented by a black leather strap. Each model is delivered with an extra blue, brown or black rubber strap, according to the colours of the watch.

The dial of the Highlife Perpetual Calendar Manufacture is distinguished by its three counters – day at 9 o’clock, month and leap year at 12 o’clock and date at 3 o’clock – with a moon phase at 6 o’clock to gracefully complete the set. Discreet controllers placed in the centre of the case make it possible, as with the crown, to adjust all the indications.
