THE LONGINES LEGEND DIVER WATCH

AN EMBLEMATIC TIMEPIECE ENTERS THE BRONZE AGE

A warm-toned design gives one of Longines' earliest dive watches a new look.

A reinterpretation of a 1960s dive watch, the Longines Legend Diver Watch occupies a special place in the Heritage segment of the brand with the winged hourglass. The range has gradually expanded over the years and now includes a bronze version. Bronze is a living material whose fascination lies in its warm colour and natural patina that changes and becomes more beautiful with time, making each timepiece unique.

Like the collection's previous models, this new version retains the spirit and clean lines of the original timepiece, while being equipped with up-to-date technical features. The newest Longines Legend Diver Watch houses an automatic movement with silicon balance-spring inside its 42 mm bronze and titanium case. And just as on the original model, the screw-down case back is decorated with an embossed emblem of a diver.

The Longines Legend Diver Watch now features a bronze version. Its green gradient lacquered dial is covered with a sapphire box crystal and sports luminous hands, hour markers with squares coated with Super-LumiNova® and Arabic numerals enhanced with a luminescent rectangle. The watch is paired with a brown leather strap finished with beige stitching, and comes with a second strap in green NATO-type nylon.
